NW2005/0840/F; Retrospective change of use, railway land to residential

Rail for Herefordshire objects to this development. We are concerned that in the last year or two there have been development encroachments onto redundant railway lines. This is actually contradictory to the spirit of policy in the Draft Unitary Development Plan that preserves railway lines and linear features such as this for present and future generations.

Railway lines deserve protection for a number of reasons, for their historic interest, as mini nature reserves and as future transport routes, be it walking, cycling or train.

Yours sincerely
